violence in South Korea makes that much clear. Since the riots started the cabinet has resigned, the Vice President has resigned, the President has quit his Liberal Party and there has been talk of Rhee handing over power to a Prime Minister elected by of these moves has stilled public clamour.

The dangers inherent in the present situation require little emphasis. If Rhee hangs on despite every entreaty by his people and his allies, widespread revolt is a clear possibility. Waiting to cash in on the anarchy is North Korea. They have a score to settle from the war 10 years ago. And they are undoubtedly ready to move in at the first opportunity.

MERICA has been A prodding this stubborn man to quit-at least that is the logical interpretation of their repeated reference to the "justifiable grievances" of the rioters. They obviously feel that unless he does leave he is ten years. The events in Seoul remind one very much of Hungary in 1956, and the attitude of Korea's allies stresses that the full freedom they fought for must be ceded to the Korean people.

President Rhee is today his pathological hatred of the called by the U.S. State De-Japanese and the Com- partment. munists has sustained him i In office in the last 10 years: he could save Korea against the outside allies who went threatened his land from 38th parallel in 1950. the north, west and south. In playing this role, he turned himself into an and his people learned to detest him even more than the enemies' beyond their borders.

President Rhee has now reached the stage of saying developments, he will resign—or retire if the people want him to. He should ask himself why the riots have continued up to now-surely only because the Korean Government has not gone far enough to meet the people's demands. If he is honest, he can come to only one conclusion—he must let the people decide for themselves who should rule the country, and how it should be ruled.

TOR years Korea has been exploited, Arst by China, then Japan and now Russia and China together. The great hope after Russia moved into North Korea in 1945 was that the South would give their people the first taste of real freedom they had ever had. The last 15 years have not been happy and the South Koreans, disgusted with the iron-handed rule of their President, show the extent of their bitterness and anger in the violent demonstrations of protest last week.

If it is any consolation to Koreans, theirs is not the only Asian country where democratic processes have been snuffed out almost at birth—and that is why there is widespread sympathy throughout the world for the students who have so courageously laid down their lives in the cause of true freedom. Before there is any further bloodshed. Rhee must go!

British widen scope to face future

As international trading competition intensifies even the biggest and best esablished concerns cannot rest on their reputations. Sometimes diversification of interests is the answer to profitable expansion. In this article Alexander Thomson, one of Britain's leading writers on business affairs tells how a work-famous British concern is widening its scope to face the future:

CORRUPTION, TRIGGER-HAPPY POLICE, AND A STUBBORN OLD MAN FACE THE U.S. WITH HER TRICKIEST CRISIS

Korea: This is the bitter pay-off

THE nation-wide-revolt against the Syngman Rhee, regime in South Korea confronts the United States with its worst Far Eastern dilemma since the Quemoy crisis.

Indeed, the tone of the State Department's warning to the Korean Government beirays the bad-tempered arritation of a nation which has plunged into a muddle of its own making and has no idea of how to extricate itself.

Ungrateful

For Korea was to have been America's gift to Far Eastern democracy. Immense quantities of American blood and treasure have been lavished on this reluctant and ungrateful land.

of the armistice in 1953, Korea U.S.A. lines. had received 1,050 million dollars in foreign economic aid and relief. Since then she has been getting U.S. military and economic assistance at an annual rate of about 150 million dollars.

Indeed, it is very probable that the U.S. taxpayer has forked out more on behalf of Korea than on any other country in the world.

So little it? Disastrously little. On the Chiang Kni-shek. military side, Korea's U.S.trained forces number, in theory, 650,000, grouped in 20 divisions.

In practice, senior officers of the two under-strength divisions, could crumple Rhee's army in less than a month. All that holds the Communists in check, they consider, is the threat of U.S. nuclear power, which dwindles daily as the U.S. heartland be-

The late Sir Stafford Cripps is known to have believed that the British would bear almost limitless taxation, and this is clearly the assumption that underlies British financial policy.
